

ALLIES APPROACH BELGIUM IN ATTEMPT TO ENVELOP VON KLUCK'S RIGHT WING

ANGLO-FRENCH FORCES RE-PORTED TODAY WITHIN
THIRTY MILES OF BEL-GIAN FRONTIER.

NO DECISION REACHED

Germans Claim to Have Repulsed
All Attacks With Heaviest Losses in the Argonne Region.

The turning movement of the allied armies in Northern France has brought the extreme of their left wing within 30 miles of the Belgian frontier.

An official statement issued by the French war office at three o'clock this afternoon says that part of the battle line stretching generally north and south has been extended north to a point near Arras. This line, on which the allies are attempting to envelop the right wing under General Von Kluck, has been pushed gradually toward the Belgian frontier as the Germans widened the front in defense on Tracy-Le-Mont.

Terrific fighting continues on the allies' left wing according to the Paris statement. The most severe struggle being in the region of Roye, a town 26 miles east of Amiens. Here the Germans have concentrated strong forces probably with the purpose of breaking through the front of the allies and isolating their forces to the north.

The Paris statement adds that the Germans attempted to bridge the Meuse near St. Mihiel, but their pontoons were destroyed. French claims of slight progress in the Woëvre district are recorded as are minor engagements on the front extending east and west.

In a statement received by wireless from Berlin, the German headquarters announced that the great battle in France still remains undecided. The Germans with their heavy artillery are hammering the positions of the allies at many points. The latter were repulsed in their attempt to break the German line. The German statement says that the heaviest losses have been in the Argonne region.

A Petrograd correspondent says the Germans at four points are attempting to concentrate on Southern Russia. Poland where a decisive battle is expected.

Interest in the attitude of Bulgaria
is revived by a dispatch from Rome, saying that all Bulgarian army officers in Italy and Switzerland have been ordered home at once.

The French minister of finance declares that the financial situation of France on October 1, was entirely satisfactory. A dispatch from Venice says that a Franco-British squadron has begun operations against Pola,
the chief naval station of Austria.

The idea of a Franco-British expeditionary force, declared the minister of foreign affairs, Marquis Di San Giuliano, who is reputed to be opposed to Italy entering the conflict, has resigned from the cabinet.

The most recent advices from Belgian report that the German attack upon Antwerp continues against a stubborn resistance.

A Montenegrin official report says that the attack of Sarajevo has been begun. Earlier advices from Nish, Serbia, said that the Serbian war office thought an attempt to take the city would be unavailable.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 2.—Unless all the signs are away the German armies in France are near the completion of their final grip. This is held here, is the only conclusion—hinted at even by the Berlin newspapers—to be drawn from the reports, either unofficial, or those on or near the front of action.

It is evident that the progress of still last some time, must inevitably end by the definite return of our adversary. The besiege in any line, the experience of battle teaches us, cannot indefinitely preserve the defensive.

Early Report.
London, Oct. 2.—Though all reports seem to agree that the German right in France has been bent back, the cautious tone of the brief official statements indicate that the battle of the Aisne is far from decided, and the British public, showing the patience that has characterized their demeanor since the outbreak of hostilities, finds a sentimental stimulus in the safe arrival of the fine Indian contingent on the French soil, and the bull terrierlike resistance of the Antwerpians who, headed by their king, seek to check the German besiegers.

More Guesswork.
Whether two forts have fallen near Antwerp, as the Germans insist, or whether the Belgians have so far repulsed the artillery onslaught is a matter of conjecture here.

From the east through various sources comes news of the Russian assault on Cracow and its vicinity,
where two and a half million Germans and Austrians are said to be concentrated. So many conflicting reports have been received concerning the Russian advance through Galicia, however, that the public is inclined to wait further details.

Indian Troops.
The London papers, both editorially and in their news columns, embellished with pictures, make a feature of the landing of the Indian troops and congratulate the war office on the successful feat of moving many transports from India without a single loss.
Editorially the press emphasizes the spirit of patriotism of the Indians which answers once for all the foreign critics who maintain that in time of stress the Indians would prove unreliable.

Consul's House Wrecked.
A dispatch from Rheims to the Exchange Telegraph company dated today says:

"Rheims was the scene of a fierce artillery duel this morning. During the bombardment the American consul, William Barden, had a narrow escape. A shell struck the hall of his residence, over which the stars and stripes were flying."

PEOPLE OF BELGIUM FACING STARVATION

Brussels Resident Near Famine as Supplies are Gone and Relief
Cut Off by Germans.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Oct. 2.—Seven hundred thousand persons in Brussels are facing starvation according to Hugh Gibson, the secretary of the American embassy here who is now in this city. Supply of flour in the Belgian capital will be exhausted today and other staples are virtually all consumed. The last proportionment of flour to the citizens of Brussels will be given out this afternoon. Efforts to get food in from Antwerp have failed in so much as Brussels is in charge of the Germans. It is in effect German territory. Neutral nations could not undertake to supply food to Brussels if transportation facilities were not practically cut off because of military operations.

Paris Report.
Berlin, via wireless, Oct. 2.—According to announcement made in Berlin today the great battle in France is still undecided. The Germans are described as hammering the allies at many points. The latter
were repulsed in their attempt to break the German line. The German statement says that the heaviest
losses have been in the Argonne region.

Paris, Oct. 2.—An official statement issued by the war department this afternoon says that terrific fighting continues incessantly near Roye, where the Germans have been strongly reinforced. The statement says:
"On our left wing the battle continues with terrific fighting, notable in the region of Roye, where the Germans appear to have concentrated dependent on reinforcements. The action extends more and more toward the north."

South of Arras.
"The front of the battle line is now extended into the region to the south of Arras."

"Upon the Meuse the Germans attempted at night to throw a bridge across the river near St. Mihiel. The bridge was destroyed by our guns."

"In the Woëvre district our offensive continues and progresses step by step, notably in the region between Apremont and St. Mihiel."

"On the remainder of the front there has been only attempted, partially,
here and there."

Must Soon End.
Whatever the Germans speak and whatever are their hopes, it appears necessary that the interminable battle of the Aisne must soon have an end,
says Lieutenant Colonel Rousset,
military critic of the Petit Parisien, commenting on the last two official communications.

"The two armies," says Rousset,
"have fought for many days, but while we have made progress daily upon two wings to the north of the river Somme and the south of the Woëvre the army of the enemy has exhausted itself to check our advance after having tried to break through somewhere."

"This situation, even though it can

AUSTRIANS CHECKED NEAR DRINA RIVER

Servian and Montenegrin Armies Are Slowly Advancing in Bosnia, Threatening Sarajevo.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Paris, Oct. 2.—"After twenty days of the offensive," says a Nish, Servia, dispatch to the Havas agency, "the Austrian forces have stopped twelve miles from Drina, on the Bosnian
frontier."

"While the forces are awaiting reinforcements before they will be able to resume the offensive, their troops at the north have been trying desperately to advance over the plain between the Drina and the Sava to get at the right flank of the Servians. All their efforts there were defeated in bloody battle."

Meanwhile the Servians and Montenegrins advance slowly but surely in Bosnia. Breaking the stubborn resistance they occupied on Sept. 30,
they have reached Romania and several other towns in the vicinity and are now advancing toward Sarajevo."

Rome, 5:55 a. m., via Paris, 7:40 a. m.,
Oct. 2.—News from Bosnia says
General Hoolia, the Austrian commander at Sarajevo, has executed citizens accused of signaling to the Ser-vians who occupy the mountains around the town. As a result nobody dares even to light the lamps inside their houses at night.

BURGOMASTER STIRS IRE OF VON GOLTZ

Defiant Attitude of Mayor of Brussels
Causes New Clash With Military Commander.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Rome via Paris, Oct. 2.—Reports from Berlin give particulars of the dissension between General Von Goltz, the German governor of Belgium, and Burgomaster Max of Brussels.

Von Der Goltz ordered the Burgomaster remove the Belgian flag from public buildings, and Max published a manifesto which explained to the population the necessity to reply before forced. Von Der Goltz was furious and let it be known that nobody was entitled to publish a manifesto except himself. He ordered that all Max's manifestos be covered with white paper, but the next morning revealed that all the covering sheets had been oiled and were thereby rendered transparent.

French papers smuggled into Brussels it is stated, sell for 25 cents per copy.

date, but Richard Lloyd Jones of

Fifty-Four Vessels Have Already

Registry Bill.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Oct. 2.—Elimination of the proposed tax of $2 a thousand on bank capital and surplus in the war revenue bill as it passed the house and substituting a stamp tax of two cents each on checks and other commercial papers not included in the original bill, was recommended today by democratic senators working on that section. All democrats of the senate finance committee met today to consider reports from sub-committees. Chairman Simmons said an effort would be made to agree upon all changes tonight.

Attacks Clayton Bill.
Senator Corns, leading the attack on the Clayton trust bill conference report in the senate today reiterated that the conference managers had "mutilated the truth" of the bill and made it a "Sunday school" statute.

"We have taken away the penalties," he said. "The easy-going negro who robs a negro must go to jail,
but to the millionaire who robs
through this bill we would say, 'go and sin no more.'"

Many Vessels Registered.
Fifty-four ships, aggregating nearly a quarter of a million tons, worth approximately $15,000,000, have been added to the American merchant marine since the new ship registry law went into effect. Although the vessels previously sailed under British, German or Belgian flags, they were merely American owned and had been foreign registered only because they have been foreign built. Assistant Secretary Sweet of the department of commerce said that the quality of price is not involved in any of the transfers.

PRAISES PRESIDENT FOR PEACE EFFORTS

Senator La Follette Commends Wilson's Attitude on Mexican and European Situations.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—"Those who mocked at his Mexican policy now offer up prayers of thanksgiving that we are not involved in an endless and fruitless war with Mexico."

Senator La Follette's editorial reference today to President Wilson's course with respect to the European war.

"Because of his course in dealing with the European war, he says,
'President Wilson today holds a supreme place in the confidence of the people of the United States. In the estimation of his character and service all other subjects are subordinated to the one great fact that everywhere finds spontaneous expression in the simple phrase: 'He is keeping us out of war.'"

"President Wilson's course for peace, every act for strong peace, every act for the stamp of sincerity, of wise caution, and fearless purpose. Full in the eye of the world he maintains a calm and noise in direct ratio to the responsibility that rests upon him. He endorses the country rejoices that Wilson is president, not Roosevelt, whose recently expressed attitude toward disarmament confirms this judgment."

In another speech the senator makes a strong plea to the people of California to elect Henry United States senator. He calls Henry the greatest graft prosecutor of history."

UNIVERSITY WILL ESCAPE WAR PRICES ON CHEMICALS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Oct. 2.—According to Business Manager H. C. Bumpus of the University of Wisconsin, the chemical supplies of the university are plentiful this year and will last a year. Supplies of this kind on hand are worth $28,000. The university is therefore not hit by the war prices on these goods, as other colleges are.

The university purchases these supplies in Europe, where the prices are much lower, and they come into this country duty free as Wisconsin university is an educational institution.

COUNTY'S EXPENSES LARGE SUM MONTHLY

COSTS $8,000 A MONTH FOR RUNNING COUNTY GOVERNMENT FIGURES SHOW.

LOWER LEVY PROBABLE

With Balance of $162,000 Now on Hand County Tax Will Undoubtedly Be Less Than Doubled Last Year.

It costs on the average of $8,000 a month for the running expenses of Rock county, according to figures compiled by County Treasurer J. J. Livermore. The grand total of expenditures for the year ending August 31, 1914, was $94,764.00, which sum is exclusive of the special funds, the principal of which is the county and state aid fund. The expenses are divided up as follows:

Janesville municipal court	$1,212.98
Beloit municipal court	1,126.68
County and justice courts	628.22
County board per diem	2,603.06
Salaries	27,216.82
Sheriff's and officers' fees	1,765.42
Miscellaneous expenses, including county aid for bridges	27,973.16
Aid to blind	2,575.00
Aid to poor or total amount expended by county poorhouses	6,750.00
County asylum and poor farm	15,000.00
County training school	2,000.00
Blind, deaf and accident fees paid on orders of state	1,200.00
Law books	850.00
Circuit court	4,228.92

Grand total ..... $94,764.00
To cover this expenditure the county appropriated last year the sum of $90,000, but the county from other sources secured an additional income of $23,761.82. Some of the more important items are as follows: Interest on county deposits, $2,233.33; saloon license money, $4,850.00; income tax county's share, $6,464.57; register of deeds office, fees and abstracts, $4,471; interest on delinquent taxes, $417.67; inheritance taxes, 7 1/2 percent, $84.83.

At the present time there is a balance in all funds of the county treasury, including the highway fund, of $162,258. The balance in the general fund is $66,054 and in the special funds, $75,203. At the average cost of running the county government it will take about $60,000 to run the county until the 1914 tax collections are available which will leave a balance of about $15,000 in the county treasury. The balance on hand in all funds on Sept. 23, 1913, was $58,337; on the same date in 1912 it was $37,195, and in 1911 it was only $35,182.

On account of the present strength of the county finances it is more than probable that the tax levy for the county government this fall will be somewhat less than it was a year ago. The amount is variously estimated between $10,000 and $18,000, meaning a county appropriation, exclusive of the amount raised for highway purposes, of from $72,000 to $80,000. The county's share of the highway fund will be no larger for next year than it was for the present year.

Two years ago the county was in rather straitened circumstances and before the tax collections for 1912 were available had borrowed the full amount allowed under the law and then lacked sufficient funds to carry it through. On top of this the county asylum faced a shortage of funds and the county trustees were forced to borrow a considerable sum on their own account, all of which had to be made up in subsequent county levies. It was to prevent such shortages that the county board at its November session a year ago placed the budget at $60,000 in order to avoid going into debt and to wipe out all obligations.

HIGH SCHOOL FAIR IS HELD AT MILTON

Students Exhibit Fine Displays of Corn, Grain, Vegetables and Flowers.

The Milton high school held a fair in the college gymnasium Thursday afternoon and evening, at which there were about 125 entries in the fruits, vegetables and grains, most of them furnished by the students. There was a good exhibit of field corn, also of popcorn, and a large display of vegetables. Among the fruits there were several varieties of apples, and plums, grapes and pears.

The largest display was of dahlias in the flower department, their being a large number of varieties displayed. Both quality and quantity were excellent. There were also salvias, gladioli, petunias and other flowers.

An admission of ten cents was charged and blue and red ribbons were the only awards. A large number visited the fair, showing a whole-some interest in the work of the students.

Mr. Brown has raised corn in Wisconsin for fifty years, but he is still studying the subject and reading agricultural papers and attending farmers' meetings.

proposition that confronts them. Germany has been prepared for years for the great struggle. Their forces have been trained to the minute to answer the call to arms. Austria has also been quietly preparing while Russia has cast covetous eyes upon the fertile fields of the slave people in the dual empire for decades and remedied the defects of its military system. France has been fitting itself for the struggle to regain Alsace and Lorraine ever since they ceased paying indemnity to Germany after the Seventy-one fiasco and while not prepared as was Germany, still have been able to muster a wonderful army in the field. All Europe is now awake to the situation. It is a life or death struggle they are engaged in. One of the most extensive wars in the history of the world is being waged. Germany and France, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Italy, Rumania, Bulgaria and Turkey and Greece are not yet involved but no man can tell how soon they may be. Europe is now awake to the stern responsibility of the war and its needs, and before the conflict is finished, before peace is signed, the map of Europe will be changed and hundreds of thousands of brave men will have laid down their lives for what—the ambition of kings and emperors, of nations and not of the people. It is a war that has started a world's conflagration and its effects are felt in every part of the civilized globe.

ANOTHER JOKER.

Here is another of the jokers that the ultra progressives who are not content to abide by the will of the people as expressed at the private and public elections, are trying to pull off. It is the unsuspicious public at the November election under the guise of reform legislation. This proposed constitutional amendment would make it possible for the state of Wisconsin for any city, to purchase for any purpose whatsoever, large tracts of private land, increase the taxes of the people and benefit the scheming projectors of a big looting of the public treasury under the legalistic cloak of reform. It is a dangerous proposition to place in the hands of any legislative body, be it city officials or a state legislature, and is aimed directly at the proposed purchase of a wide strip of land, some six square blocks in the city of Madison, for an approach to the state capital at a cost of millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money. Vote "no" on this resolution, which reads as follows:

JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 25.

To amend article XI of the constitution, by adding thereto a new section to be known as section 2b, relating to the acquisition of land by the state.

Whereas, at the biennial session of the legislature for the year 1911, an amendment to the constitution was proposed and agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses, which proposed amendment is as follows:

Resolved, by the assembly, the senate concurring, That article XI of the constitution be amended by adding a new section thereto, to be known as section 2b, to read: 2b. When private property shall be or have been taken for public use by a municipal corporation, additional adjoining or neighboring property may be taken, under conditions to be prescribed by the legislature by general law. Property thus taken shall be deemed to be taken for public use; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the assembly, the senate concurring, That the foregoing proposed amendment to the constitution of the state of Wisconsin be, and the same is hereby agreed to by this legislature.

Note: (If adopted, this amendment will enlarge the power of municipal corporations to acquire private property for public use.)

There should be no question as to the republican candidates for the assembly of the first and second districts being elected. In Mr. Whittey the republicans have named a man whose state-wide acquaintance makes him a valuable man in the assembly, and if the cards are not dealt wrong he will be the next speaker of the lower house. Mr. Winiger, they have nominated a man they can tie to in time of necessity whose judgment will be unbiased and whose vote will be for the best interests of his constituents.

The Civic League, an organization of ladies looking for the best interests of the city, met this afternoon to elect new officers for the coming year's work and map out plans for a campaign for the betterment of the city. Their work is to be commended and every woman in the city should be a member of this organization, whose leaders by their unselfish devotion to the cause they espouse should be given every encouragement possible.

When it comes to the republican county ticket put a cross at the head of the column and forget the rest. The democrats have not nominated men of sufficient strength in this time of necessity to really deserve more than passing consideration. The republican candidates for County Clerk Lee down to the last candidate on the ticket deserve re-election, having shown their capability of performing the duties of the offices they hold.

It is pretty nearly time to clean up the yards for the last time for the fall. It will soon be cold weather and when it comes it will be a long time before it is spring again. Meanwhile make the most of the pleasant Indian summer days while they last.

AMONG THE NEWSPAPERS.

Mexican Situation.

Better acquaintance with the circumstances leading to the Carranza-Villa rupture warrants re-examination. It is evident that a misunderstanding lay at the bottom of the trouble. Carranza, accepting unconfirmed newspaper reports that Villa had put General Orozco under arrest, retaliated by cutting off train communications with the north, a proceeding that led Villa to take the field. Actually Orozco was on his way unharmed to attend the meeting of constitutionalist generals at Aguascalientes.

The real trouble, it is hardly necessary to say, lies in the feelings of distrust that separate Carranza and Villa. Both have resented Carranza's service to the cause. The supreme test of their patriotism they are now undergoing in the attempt to arrive at a basis of confidence. Carranza, it is understood, has agreed to surrender the chief executive power to Venustiano Carranza, the liberal leader in Mexico City, a man generally acceptable to Villa. It remains only for the meeting at Aguascalientes, to ratify the arrangement and provide for his installation as provisional president under conditions affording satisfactory evidence of the good faith of all the parties concerned. In course under proper form of law, a president would be elected, and one of the main purposes of the revolution would then have been accomplished without further bloodshed.—New York Globe.

That Factory Problem.

It isn't always a good plan to go out looking for some sickly factory that is simply out for a bonus, for about ninety per cent of those that do come that way prove to be poor investments. However if the resources right at home are developed it will be of lasting benefit and encourage manufacturing to come in with paying for it. With the proper local support the club will do much for this community.—Antigo Journal.

That's Roosevelt.

Roosevelt is writing articles on the way. His one idea still is to carry a club, in spite of the fact that the rest of mankind appears to see enough evidence in the present war to convince them that great armaments lead to war. The former president insists that it is the duty of this country to be in shape to whip everybody who wants to have a fight. "Thank God for Wilson."—Milwaukee Journal.

Tables Turned.

Kipling's chivalrous description of a woman as "a rag, a bone and a bank of hair" has been parodied by a Missouri member of the maligned sex, who describes her husband as "a jag, a drone and a tank of air." Individuals answering to either of those specifications recognize Monday, Oct. 5, as the day of the easy divorce.—Evening Wisconsin.

FUNERAL FOR MILO COLLINS

WAS HELD ON THURSDAY; AGED RESIDENT OF COUNTY.

Edgerton, Oct. 2.—The funeral of Milo Collins, an old settler, who died at noon on Tuesday was held from the residence, on South Main street at 1 o'clock yesterday. Rev. Hooten of the Methodist church officiated, interment being made in Fasset cemetery.

As a boy of nine he came to Edgerton and helped to build the first frame house in this part of the country. This was in 1844 and the house was located just beyond the "flat-iron" corner of the Albion road.

He lived in and around Edgerton all his life except a year or two at Milton and the time he served with the boys in blue in the Civil war. He was an industrious citizen, quiet but of a friendly disposition and won friends all over this section of the state, who will be sorely grieved to learn of his demise. He is survived by his wife, to whom he was married

WHAT CAUSES COLDS?

This question and "How to Prevent Colds" is asked a thousand times every day. A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but due to a disordered condition of the blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons food-factors are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the body better able to withstand the varying elements.

This is the underlying reason why the medicinal fats in Scott's Emulsion quickly overcome colds and build strength to prevent more serious sickness. It contains nature's medicinal fats, so skillfully prepared that the blood profits from every drop, and it is free from harmful drugs or alcohol.

EVIDENCE IN BOTTLE MYSTERY SUBMITTED

FACULTY NO LONGER HOLD STUDENTS RESPONSIBLE FOR ACT RECENTLY COMMITTED.

STUDENTS TAKE ACTION

Captain Stewart Asks That Training Rules Be Adopted—Better School Spirit Must Be Shown.

When athletics at the Janesville high school were annulled early last week by high school authorities, certain individuals took it upon themselves to organize a "dry" football schedule, there were two provisions made by Principal J. T. Shearor, which if successfully carried out by the student body might mean the return of athletic activities to the institution.

To date, one of these provisions has been cleared up to the satisfaction of Principal Shearor and the entire faculty. That enough evidence in the bottle mystery has been submitted by the student body to give to who committed the act, and that the act was not known or participated in by any of the high school students, is the belief of the faculty after thorough evidence was traced carefully to them.

The second and most serious provision of the two must yet be taken up by the students. This provision calls for school spirit, school honor, and earnestness to comply with whatever regulations the authorities might adopt in upholding clean athletics in the school. The school does not intend to allow the return of athletics to the school, by merely fair promises on the part of the students, nor do they intend to let the students in the matter of clearing up all past difficulties, in order that football, etc., can be resumed. "It is a student's affair, and not one in which the faculty are to be called upon for aid," was the statement of Principal Shearor this morning. "The students are holding meetings wholly apart from the school authorities. It is their business to clear up the mystery, and when that is done, we will consider the return of athletics. When the students are sincere while others are not, I shall interview certain students today, whose attitude for sincerity has been questioned by members of the faculty."

Two enthusiastic high school sportsmen, Captain Leslie Stewart and Harold Stokney of the football and basketball teams, respectively. They have strived most energetically in attempting to clear up the perplexing mystery. Stewart has a new proposition to the faculty which provides for a training table, in which all athletes must remain in training throughout the entire playing season. When a player has smoked, drank or broken any of the training codes of rules, he will be directed to hand in his suit, and become an ex-member of the team. The proposition was met with favor by the members of the squad at a special meeting called yesterday noon by Stewart.

Another meeting was called at four o'clock yesterday afternoon by Stewart, in which the proposition was read to the two hundred student detectives of the school. He asked them to consider carefully the stringent rules with which they would have to agree to and keep, their final answer being affirmative. Principal Shearor, however, is not satisfied with merely a promise. He declares that the only assurance they can give is by their actions from now on. Students engaging in acts from now on, whether members of athletic teams or not, will be taken before the school faculty and dealt with separately.

Buell, Principal Shearor and Coach Curtis talked to the boys at the meeting, after being called in by Stewart. All three speakers stated that the school was not a gambling place, and that the school spirit, in a greater degree was urged, and the meeting closed with the students gaining little satisfaction as to whether or not there would be athletics.

It is presumed the matter will be settled by tonight, as the football team will have to engage in at least a week's practice before taking up the schedule. Coach Curtis was forced to cancel the game for tomorrow with the Delavan deaf mutes.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

SYSTEM AND SATISFACTION.

A FRIEND of mine made up her mind to buy a farm. She had only two months in which to select and this is the way she went about it. She bought a map of the territory around the city in which her family have business interests. She consulted the city in which the distance to which they were willing to commute, and then she drew on the map.

Her next step was to eliminate. She eliminated all territory north of the city because it was low land and they wanted a high place. She eliminated the land south of the city because it was not good farming land. That left her a certain section on the east and west.

She next went to a reliable real estate firm, discussed the remaining territory with them, and having eliminated further territory because of price and certain other considerations proceeded to inspect the remaining sections with the firm's various agents.

On all these trips she took with her a memorandum book in which was a list of important points, such as the size of farm desired, size of house, distance from station, conveniences, etc. Each place which she viewed as she examined in the light of these requirements, and noted down how each one stood the various tests, just for certain points, and rates him accordingly.

Needless to say that this woman made a perfectly satisfactory purchase. Why not? Satisfaction and system are seldom separated.

I know another woman who also bought a farm some years ago. Having conceived the idea (without knowing anything about the matter) that they would like to farm she and her husband went to an agent (of whose reliability they knew nothing) and told him they wanted to buy a farm. He sized them up and showed them an attractive and impracticable place; they fell in love with it at first sight and bought without looking further. They gradually discovered that it was too far from the station to be practicable for commuting, and that it was not good for the kind of farming they wanted to do, and that the markets on that side of the city were poor. They are now vainly trying to dispose of the property for two-thirds of the price they paid.

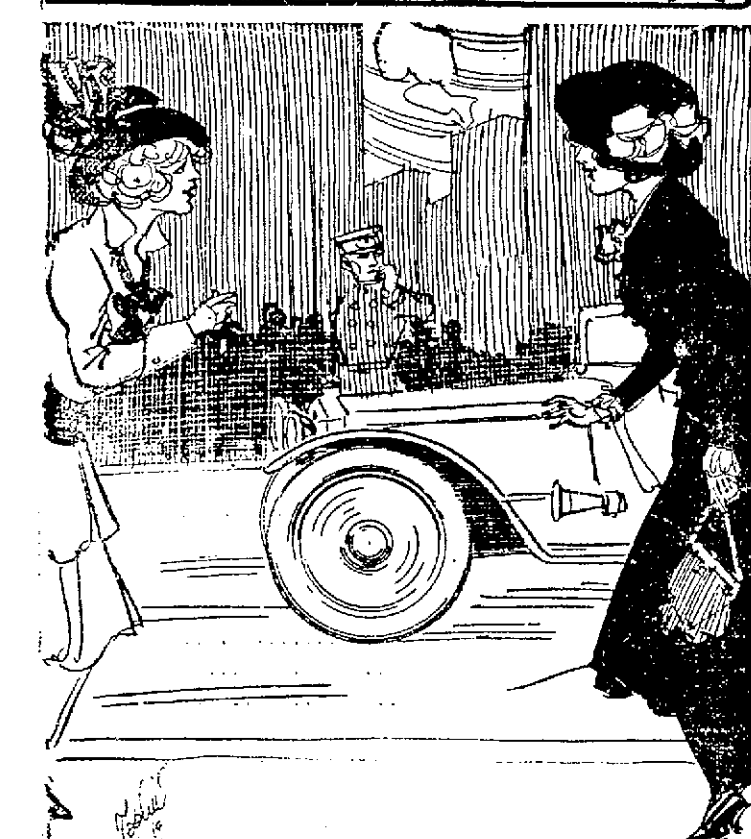

These people went about the business of life without knowing what they wanted or how to get it. It was as inevitable as the law of gravity that they should be disappointed as they would grow in a plot of waste land.

The trouble with most of us who don't get what we want in the world is that, in the first place, we don't know exactly what we want, and in the second, we don't go about getting it systematically.

Any part of the business of life from washing dishes to ruling a kingdom can be done better if it is done systematically.

Let the first step toward getting what you want in any direction be definition. The second elimination, the third determination and the fourth will almost inevitably be satisfaction.

The Awakening of Peggy

LXXXVII.

Patty Gets Anxious Also and Seeks Information From Peggy.

One day after lunch as Peggy was where did I go the night before? Well, I guess it has been two or three days since I saw Mr. Conderoy last. "When you do see him, if you see him first," rejoined Patty. "Just tell him that I'm remembering his promise to teach me that new dance. But just as likely as not I'll see him first, so never mind trying to remember any message for him. Anything you want me to tell him for you?" This was no better. I was not concealing the thrust in Patty's words and tone.

"Thank you," replied Peggy sweetly. "But I think not."

She wanted to say more, but she would have bitten off the end of her tongue first. Patty was presuming a little too much on the effectiveness of her saucy good looks to excuse her for her feeble propensities.

As Peggy passed on, she found a morsel of comfort in the reflection that if she was seeing nothing of Parker Conderoy these days, Patty was no better off at all. At any rate, Patty hadn't annexed him to her train.

The further reflection that Conderoy might have decided to give both girls a little absent treatment was not so encouraging. Peggy wished she might have the solution to her problem.

dye a light tan serge suit? What brand of dye is best to use?

(1) If an alkali, as soda took the color out of an acid would restore it. But an acid will take the color out around the spot if it touches it. You would need to use a medicine dropper. It would be best to send it to the cleaner if the dress is valuable, as they have facilities to work with.

(2) A light tan serge suit would take brown best. Angel or Dainty dyes are very satisfactory.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please give me a remedy for blackheads—as inexpensive as possible?

Writing out a washrag in water as hot as you can stand and lay it on your face. Keep this up for ten or fifteen minutes till the pores are well opened. Then squeeze out the blackheads and rub cold cream on your face.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can you give me a recipe for making quince honey—the kind that looks like strained honey.

Quince Honey—Five nice quinces pared and grated, one pint water, five pounds granulated sugar. Add the grated quinces into the boiling sugar and water. Cook fifteen minutes, pour into glasses and let cool before covering.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

We should not be merely an influence—we should be an inspiration. By our very presence we should be a tower of strength to the hungering human souls around us.—William G. Jordan.

SERVING POTATOES.

Cut in quarter-inch slices and fry carefully in a small amount of hot fat.

Cut in half-inch cubes and warm them in milk to cover; season with butter, salt, pepper and parsley.

Fry a slice of onion a golden brown, add potatoes and cook until well browned; season with salt and pepper and serve.

Mix with white sauce; add crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Add onion and potatoes to a hot frying pan, with a little fat; when well cooked and hot, add a little hot vinegar.

German Balls.—To a pint of hot mashed potatoes add two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Form into balls, dip in beaten egg and fry in hot fat until a golden brown. Garnish with parsley.

Fill a hollow mold with seasoned and mashed potatoes; turn the molded potato out on to a dish, brush with egg and brown. When ready to serve, fill the center with creamed chicken or sweetbreads, and all piping hot when served.

Potato Puff.—Boil until tender, then mash a half dozen potatoes, add a half cupful of cream, season and beat until light; fold in the whites of three eggs beaten stiff, and bake in a dish in which it is to be served until it is brown.

Potato Croquettes.—Beat an egg until thick, then add a cup of mashed potato, one tablespoonful of cream, a tablespoonful of butter, a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, a bit of grated nutmeg, and salt and cayenne to season. Mix and stir into a pan until it leaves the sides of the pan; turn out to cool, and when cold form into cylinders; roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Sweet Potatoes Baked.—Boil sweet potatoes in their skins, peel and put into a baking pan with the water in which the potatoes were boiled; add sugar and bits of butter and lay in the sliced potatoes. They should be baked in half-inch slices. Bake while baking with the liquid in the pan.

No Sympathy Among Animals. Whenever an animal is ill, the first step is to isolate it, not so much for fear of infection as to protect it from the cruel attention of its fellows, attentions which may cause its death by violence. It will appreciate the value of quiet cozy quarters, in which it may be safe from persecution.

Corns Quit, Pains Stop, With "Gets-It"

Quit Plasters, Salves and What-Not. After using "GETS-IT" once you will never again have occasion for asking "What can I do to get rid of my corns?" "GETS-IT" is the first sure, certain, corn-ender ever known. If you have tried other things by the score, and will now try "GETS-IT" you will realize this glorious fact.

Why "Suffer Yet? Use "GETS-IT" They'll Vanish!

You probably are tired sticking on tape that won't stay stuck, plasters that shift themselves right out of your corn, and corns that make a bundle of your toe and drop of "GETS-IT" on the corn. Put two drops of "GETS-IT" on the corn in two seconds. The corn is then doomed as sure as night follows day. The corn shrivels. There is no pain. No fuss. If you think this sounds too good to be true try it to night on any corn, callus, wart or bunion.

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When a screw becomes loose, remove it and fill the hole with bits of sponge packed in tightly. Then replace the screw and it will hold as firmly as ever.

Instead of using an expensive enamel paint to paint kitchen shelves a plain white paint may be used. When dry paint over with a coating of thin hot starch. This gives the same gloss as enamel and will not come off when washed.

To wash a white sweater, knead the sweater in warm water in which a little soap has been dissolved. Repeat three times, using fresh suds each time. Rinse in tepid water to which a little ammonia has been added. Press out as much moisture as possible and hang out to dry in the wind.

If you will sprinkle some lime on a board and place it in the oven after baking it will absorb the steam and prevent rust from forming.

THE TABLE.

Spanish Buns.—One cup of sugar, four tablespoons of melted butter, half a cup of New Orleans molasses, two eggs and one yolk of egg, one cup of sour milk, two cups of flour, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, and the same of allspice, soda, vanilla and half a teaspoonful of cloves. Bake in a loaf.

Cinnamon Bun.—Rub one tablespoonful of lard into one quart of flour and add one teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoons of baking powder. Stir in quickly half a sheet of butter in a thin layer of sugar, another of currants, and then a sprinkling of cinnamon. Roll up and cut into buns about two inches long. Stand these on their ends in a greased pan and bake twenty-five minutes in a quick oven.

Fig Rolls.—Sift together one quart of whole wheat flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonsful of baking powder. Rub into this one tablespoonful of butter, and one egg whipped light. Make a soft dough by working one and a half cups of milk into the flour gradually, but do not allow it to become too wet. Roll out quickly half an inch thick and cut into oval pieces. Brush with melted butter. Chop ten figs very fine and spread over half each roll. Fold together with beaten white of egg. Bake for 20 minutes in a hot oven.

Sally Lunn.—Three cups of flour, one cup of sugar, one cup corn meal, half a cup of butter, one and a half cups of milk, four eggs and two teaspoonsful of baking powder.

Coffee Gems.—Four eggs, one cup granulated sugar, two teaspoonsful extract of coffee, one cup flour. Beat eggs in a sauce pan and add the extract and sugar, beat rapidly together over boiling water until it is warm; remove from fire, beat for fifteen minutes, add flour sifted, and have the gems ready, brushed with suet and sprinkled with a little granulated sugar. Fill pans half with batter and bake in a quick oven for fifteen minutes.

Baked Apple Jelly.—Fill a two-quart china or stoneware baking dish with alternate layers of tart apples, sliced, and sugar. Cover closely and bake three hours. This is delicious and should turn out like pink jelly if right kind of apples is used.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

If you are one of the vast army of women who are listed as "fleshy" and would be thin—exercise. If you belong to the angular class and wish to belong to the plump class, exercise.

Exercise is a patent medicine advertisement, but there is a strong grain of truth in the assertion, for exercise judiciously used, for exercise judiciously used, will put and keep one in fine physical condition. The trouble with so many of us, we eat too much and exercise too little. It is all very well for a woman to say that she does all her own work; but she does not have the time, ambition or inclination for any such procedure, but if this very woman would go through a series of these exercises she might be agreeably surprised at the result. Now housework certain sets of muscles are used, all day, every day. Other muscles are left inactive and then extreme weariness is the result. Housework is blamed for so many things that it is not really guilty of—for if one would just relax a bit when feeling as if they were on the last lap of their endurance, or put themselves through a bit of exercise using different muscles than the ones now weary, a refreshed, animated woman would take the place of the one who was weary until crankiness.

It is always the tired woman who is cranky; leastways they are the only ones who have the right to be, and it is problematical if a tired woman has the right to upset the atmosphere of an otherwise happy home, just because she needs to slow down or change her work a wee bit. There is not a muscle in the body but what can be developed by proper care and the general health of the average person can be improved twenty per cent by the right kind of eating, judicious exercise and all the fresh air in the world. Do you ever stop to think how ridiculous it is for one to overeat, under-exercise and then when they feel a bit out of sorts, lower the speed record getting to their family physician. "Here I am, cure me!" is the attitude they take—just as if any mortal man can be handing out a bottle cure you of your shortcomings—for that is what ails you. What a person needs is a strong dose of common sense and the will-power to apply it daily.

The doctors try to tell this to their patients, but some people are so thin-skinned that to dare insinuate that they have not the right diagnosis of their case is to put an unbridgeable chasm between their physician and themselves.

Women who tend to all the work connected with their homes should, if possible, get into the open once every day. Getting there, they should walk. This suggestion can be ridiculed, but housework is a task that if you allow it to, will "get you." For the benefit of people not well versed in modern physics, it will be said that the momentum of working along daily without a break, as housekeepers can do if they will, is about as wearing as anything in the world. Therefore, it is the positive duty of every housekeeper to get out and see what other people are doing. The time spent in so doing is more than made up on one's return as a new viewpoint is often the result, and when we see other people of the sort to cultivate, to get busy and forge ahead also.

A wee bit more system, more common sense applied to methods, a firm determination that one's job is the very best job in the world, or that you are going to make it so, and a little exercise along physical culture lines and the cloud that looms so large and dark blue before one, will surely turn to silver.

THIS WAR POEM CALLED BEST YET

Harold Begbie's "Fall In!" is a genuine hit in England. Reprinted and quoted everywhere, it seems so far to be the war poem par excellence. It is one of a number of stirring productions turned out in the last few weeks by Begbie, who ranks as the most prolific of the war poets.

Fall In! What will you lack, sonny, what will you lack? When the girls line up the street, shouting their love to the lads come back.

From the foe they rush to meet? Will you send a strangled cheer to the sky?

And grin till your cheeks are red? But what will you lack when your mate goes by?

With a girl who cuts you dead? Where will you look, sonny, where will you look?

When your child can yet to be clear to learn of the part you took in the war that kept them free?

Will you say it was naught to go. If France stood up to her foe or bunked? But where will you look when they give the glance?

That tells you they know you fumbled? How will you fare, sonny, how will you fare?

In the far-off Winter night, When you sit by the fire in an old man's chair

And your neighbors talk of the fight? Will you sink away, as it were from a blow?

Your old head shamed and bent? Or say—I was not with the first to go. But I went, think God, I went?

Why do they call, sonny, why do they call? For men who are brace and strong? Is it for naught to you if your country fall?

And Right is smashed by wrong? Is it too still and the picture show.

The pub and the betting odds, When your brothers stand to the tyrant's blow?

And England's call is God's? USE GOOD ENGLISH

Improve Your English And You Will Improve Your Opportunity For Advancement In Life.

(This is Lesson V in a series of short, simple lessons in English, by C. R. Rounds, Inspector of English, Wisconsin State Normal Schools.) THERE LIKE GOOD

Many of our sentences begin with the word there; for instance: There was a man who always came to see us. There are many people who are dissatisfied with themselves. There are several ways in which we may improve our opportunities. There are four who are sure to go. There are John and Mary. There were three of us.

The above sentences are CORRECT. But many people make two errors in such sentences. First, they use the word there instead of there. Test yourself on that matter and correct yourself if you are wrong. Second, many people fail to notice whether the subject of the verb is plural or singular, and so they fail to watch the number of the verb. Notice these sentences carefully: We say There is John, because the subject, John, is singular; but we say There are John and Mary, because the subject, John and Mary, is plural. The mistake we most frequently make in these sentences is to use a singular verb where we should use a plural. Remember, the plural forms of this most troublesome verb be are: are, were, and have been. It would be a good plan to say these sentences over several times, until they fit naturally into your speech: There are several people waiting. There are no students in that course. There are no coats in that pasture. There are no boxes in that room. There were seven men in the cars. There aren't enough to go around.

There are two other words that are

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, hollow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel—10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

frequently used incorrectly. They are like and good. Like is not a conjunction, and should not be used to introduce a clause. The following sentence is wrong: It looks like it would rain. The right form is: It looks like rain; or it looks as if it would rain. Note these sentences; they are CORRECT: She looks like me. It looked like a stone. It hurried me like everything. It sounded as if something fell. He ran as if he must have been frightened.

Good is an adjective and should NEVER be used to modify a verb. We should NOT say: I am getting along good. That is WRONG. Sometimes pupils say to me: "I am getting along good in my English." I know these that they are too hopeful. Use well, in such sentences: I am getting or well. He is doing well. He did very well. He is good and he is succeeding very well.

BIG SECRET--IF YOU HAVE GRAY HAIR

You Can Restore It to Natural Color by the Action of Air No Dye—Nature Does It.

Haven't you often wondered how friends of yours whom you know to be OLDER than you, keep themselves looking YOUNGER by retaining the natural beauty and youthful color of their hair? More than likely, they have discovered the virtues of Hay's Hair Health.

In no sense whatever is Hay's Hair Health a dye. It is a combination of ingredients recognized by the medical profession as being the best stimulating the hair and creating a healthy scalp condition. Added to these is another wonderful element which so prepares each hair that the hair that the AIR with which it comes in contact brings back the NATURAL color. It is harmless, yet positively SURE in its results.

The truth of this claim has been proved in hundreds of thousands of cases throughout the United States.

In addition to being a color restorative, Hay's is a truly wonderful hair and scalp tonic. It prevents dandruff; keeps the scalp clean; freshens dull, lifeless hair; restores its lustre and softness.

If Hay's falls in your case, your drug dealer will return your money.

CHAPTER XI.

At the Galland House.

Every unit engrossed in his own work. Every man taught how a weak link may break a chain and realizing himself as a link and only a link! The captain of engineers forgot Marta's existence as an error of his subordinates caught his eye, and he went to caution the axmen to cut closer to the ground, as stumps gave cover for riflemen. For the time being he had no more interest in the knoll than in the wreckage of the dirigibles which were down and out of the fight.

After all, the knoll was only a single point on the vast staff map—only one of many points of a struggle whose progress was bulletined through the rifling of regimental, brigade, division and corps headquarters in net results to the staff. Partow and Lanstron overlooked all. Their knowledge made the vast map live under their eyes. But our concern is with the story of two companies, and particularly of two companies, and that is very enough. If you would grasp the whole, multiply the conflict on the knoll by ten thousand.

There had been the engrossment of transcendent emotion in repelling the charge. What followed was like some grim and passionless trance with triggers ticking off the slow-passing minutes. Dellarme aimed to keep down the fusillade from Fracasse's trench and yet not to neglect the fair targets of the reserves advancing by rushes to the support of the 128th. Reinforced, the gray streak at the bottom of the slope poured in a heavier fire. Above the steady crackle of bullets sent and the whistle of bullets received rose the cry of "Doctor! Doctor!" which meant each time that another Brown rifle had been silenced. The litter bearers, hard pressed to remove the wounded, left the dead. Already death was a familiar sight—an article of exchange in which Dellarme's men dealt freely. The man at Stransky's side had been killed outright. He lay face down on his rifle stock. His cap had fallen off. Stransky put it back on the man's head, and the example was followed in other cases. It was a good idea to keep up a show of a full line of caps to the enemy.

Suddenly, as by command, the fire from the base of the knoll ceased altogether. Dellarme understood at once what this meant—the next step in the course of a systematic, irresistible approach by superior numbers. It was to allow the ground scouts to advance. Individual gray spots detaching themselves from the gray streak began to crawl upward in search of dead spaces where the contour of the ground would furnish some protection from the blaze of bullets from the crest.

"Over their heads! Don't try to hit them!" Dellarme passed the word. "That's it! Spare one to get a lesson!" said Stransky, grinning in ready comprehension. He seemed to be grinning every time that Dellarme looked in that direction. He was plainly enjoying himself. His restless nature had found sport to its taste.

The creeping scouts must have signaled back good news, for groups began crawling slowly after them.

"Over their heads! Encourage them!" Dellarme commanded.

After they had advanced two or three hundred yards they stopped, shoulders and hands exposed in silhouette, and began to work feverishly with their spades.

"Oh, beautiful!" cried Stransky. "That baby captain of ours has some brains, after all! We'll get them now and we'll get them when they run!"

But they did not run. Unfalteringly they took their punishment while they turned over the protecting sod in the midst of their own dead and wounded. In a few minutes they had dropped spades for rifles, and other sections hurriedly crawled or ran forward precipitately and fell to the task of joining the isolated beginnings into a single trench.

Again Dellarme looked toward regimental headquarters, his fixed, cheery smile not wholly masking the appeal in his eyes. The Grays had only two or three hundred yards to go when they should make their next charge in order to reach the crest. But his men had fifteen hundred to go in the valley before they were out of range. After their brave resistance facing the enemy they would receive a hail of bullets in their backs. This was the time to withdraw if there were to be assurance of a safe retreat. But there was no signal. Until there was, he must remain.

The trench grew; the day wore on. Two rifles to one were now playing against his devoted company, which had had neither food nor drink since early morning. As he scanned his thinning line he saw a look of bloodlessness and hopelessness gathering on the set faces of which he had grown so fond during this ordeal. Some of the men were crouching too much for effective aim.

"See that you fire low! Keep your heads up!" he called. "For your homes, your country and your God! Pass the word along!"

Parched throat after parched throat repeated the message hoarsely and leaden shoulders raised a trifle and dust-matted eyelashes narrowed sharply on the sights.

"For the man in us!" growled Stransky. "For the favor of nature at birth that gave us the right to wear trowsers instead of skirts! For the joy of hell, give them hell!"

"For our homes! For the man in us!" they repeated, swallowing the words as if they had the taste of a stimulant.

But Dellarme knew that it would not take much to precipitate a break. He himself felt that he had been on that knoll half a lifetime. He looked at his watch and it was five o'clock. For seven hours they had held on. The Grays' trench was complete the breadth of the slope; more reserves were coming up. The brigade commander of the Grays was going to make sure that the next charge succeeded.

At last Dellarme's glance toward regimental headquarters showed the flag that was the signal for withdrawal. Could he accomplish it? The first lieutenant, with a shattered arm, had gone on a litter. The old sergeant was dead, a victim of the colonial wars. Used to fighting savage enemies, he had been too eager in exposing himself to a civilized foe. He had been shot through the throat.

"Men of the first section," Dellarme called, "you will slip out of line with the greatest care not to let the enemy know that you are going!"

"Going—going! Careful! Men of the first section going!" the parched throats repeated in a thrilling whisper.

"Those who remain keep increasing their fire!" called Dellarme again. "Cover the whole breadth of the trench!"

Every fourth man wormed himself backward on his stomach until he was below the skyline, when his stiffened limbs brought him to his feet and he started on a dead run down into the valley and toward a cut behind another knoll across the road from the Galland house. The others followed at intervals.

Once across a road and up three series of steps of the other garden terrace, behind a breastwork of sandbags, the company rested. Most of them had fallen asleep on the ground after finishing their rations, logs of men in animal exhaustion. Some of those awake wore too weary to give to each other more than a nod and smile. They had talked too much horror that day to talk about it. But Stransky forced.

Marta, coming out on the veranda, saw him.

"You are tired! You are hungry!" she said with urgent gentleness. "Come in."

He followed her into the house and dropped on a leather chair before a shining table in a room paneled with oak, wondering at her and at himself. No woman of Marta's world had ever spoken in that way to him. But it was good to sit down. Then a maid with a sad, winsome face and tender eyes brought him wine and bread and cold meat and jam. He gulped down a glassful of wine; he ate with great mouthfulness in the ravenous call of healthy, exhausted tissues, while the maid stood by to out more bread.

"When it comes to eating after fighting—"

He looked up when the first pang of hunger was assuaged. Enormous, broad-shouldered, physical, his cheeks flushed with wine, his eyes opened wide and brilliant with the fire that was in his nature—eyes that spoke the best business of anarchy and war.

"Say, but you're pretty!"

Springing up, he caught her hand and made to kiss her in the brushness of impulse. Minna struck him a stinging blow in the face. He received it as a mastiff would receive a bite from a pup, and she stood her ground, her eyes challenging his fearlessly.

"So you are like that!" he said thoughtfully. "It was a good one, and you meant it, too."

"Decidedly!" she answered. "There's more where that came from!"

Then little Clarissa Eileen entered and pressed against her mother's skirts, subjecting Stransky to childhood's scrutiny. He waved a finger at her and grinned and drew his eyes together in a squint at the bridge of his nose, making a funny face that brought a laugh.

"Your child?" Stransky asked Minna. "Yes."

"Where's her father? Away fighting?"

"I don't know where he is!"

"Oh!" he mused. "Was that blow for him at the same time as for me?" he pursued thoughtfully.

"Yes, for all of your kind."

"M-m-m!" came from between his lips as he rose. "Would you mind holding out your hand?" he asked with a gentleness singularly out of keeping with his rough aspect.

"Why?" she demanded.

"I've never studied any books of etiquette of polite society, and I am a poor sort at making speeches, anyhow. But I want to kiss a good woman's hand by way of apology. I never kissed one in my life, but I'm getting a lot of new experiences today. Will you?"

She held out her hand at arm's length and flushed slightly as he pressed his lips to it.

"You certainly do not think slices," he said smiling. "And you certainly are pretty!" he added, passing out of the door as faintly as if he were ready for another fight and just in time to see the colonel of the regiment come around the house. He stood at the salute, half proudly, half defiantly, but in no wise humbly.

"Well, Major Dellarme!" was the colonel's greeting of the company commander.

"Major?" exclaimed Dellarme. "Yes. Partow has the power. Four of the aviators have iron crosses already and promotion, too; and you are a major. Company G got into a mess and the whole regiment would have been in one unless you held on. So I let you stay. It all came out right, as Lanstron planned—right so far. But your losses have been heavy and here you are in the thick of it again. Your company may change places with Company B, which has had a relatively easy time."

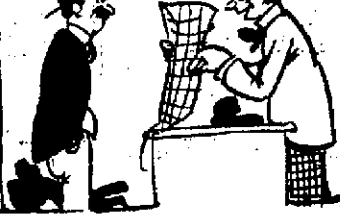

"No, sir; we would prefer to stay," Dellarme answered quietly.

Dinner Stories

"I want some wire netting to keep mosquitoes out of the house," said the Jerseyite.

"How about this?" asked the clerk

as he displayed a sample.

"The mesh is too coarse," said the customer. "I may also want to use it for chickens."

One day at Versailles, during the Franco-Prussian war, Lord Odo Russell went to call on Bismarck, but found him closeted with Count Henry Arnim, who was known as the "Ape" from his fantastical ways. Before long Arnim came out, fanning himself with his handkerchief and looking as if about to choke.

"Well," he gasped, "I cannot understand how Bismarck can bear that—smoking the strongest Havana cigars in a stuffy little room. I had to beg him to open the window."

When Lord Russell entered the room he found the chancellor fanning himself beside an open easement.

"What strange tastes some people have!" he exclaimed. "Arnim has just left me, and he was so overpoweringly perfumed that I had to open the window."

"Miss Sally Mander bet me a dozen kisses yesterday afternoon, 'And do you suppose you will get them if you win the bet?'"

"Yes," indeed, Jack Swift, who called on her last night, told me this morning that he is holding the stakes.

THE WORLD SET FREE

EUROPE'S ARMAGEDDON
AND THE LAST WAR.

By H. G. WELLS.

Copyright, 1914, by H. G. Wells.

It is doubtful if we shall ever see again a phase of human existence in which "politics"—that is to say, a partial interference with the ruling sanctities of the world—will be the dominant interest among serious men. We seem to have entered upon an entirely new phase in history, in which contention as distinguished from rivalry has almost abruptly ceased to be the usual occupation and has become at most a subdued and hidden and discredited thing. Contentious professions cease to be an honorable employment for men. The peace between nations is also a peace between individuals. We live in a world that comes of age. The warrior, man the lawyer and all the bickering aspects of life pass into obscurity; the grave dreamers, man the curious learner and man the creative artist, come forward to replace these barbaric aspects of existence by a less ignoble adventure.

There is no natural life of man. He is and always has been a sheath of varied and even incompatible possibilities, a palimpsest of inherited dispositions. It was the habit of many writers in the early twentieth century to speak of competition and the narrow private life of trade and saving and suspicious isolation as though such things were in some exceptional way proper to the human constitution, and as though openness of mind and a preference for achievement over possession were abnormal and rather unsubstantial qualities. How wrong that was the history of the decades immediately following the establishment of the world republic witnesses. Once the world was released from the hardening insecurities of a needless struggle for life that was collectively pitiless and individually absorbing, it became apparent that there was in the vast mass of people a long smothered passion to make things. The world broke out into making, and at first mainly into aesthetic making. This phase of history, which has been not inaptly termed the "efflorescence," is still to a large extent with us. The majority of our population consists of artists and the bulk of activity in the world lies no longer with necessities, but with their elaboration, decoration and refinement. There has been an evident change in the quality of this making during the recent years. It becomes more purposeful than it was, losing something of its first elegance and prettiness and gaining in intensity, but that is a change rather of hue than of nature. That comes with a deepening philosophy and a sounder education.

For the first joyous exercises of fancy we perceive now the deliberation of a more constructive imagination. There is a natural order in these things, and art comes before science as the satisfaction of more elemental needs must come before art, and as play and pleasure come in a human life before the development of a settled purpose.

For thousands of years this gathering impulse to creative work must have struggled in man against the limitations imposed upon him by his social ineptitude. It was a long smoldering fire that flamed out at last into all these things. The evidence of a pathetic, perpetually thwarted urgency to make something is one of the most touching aspects of the relics and records of our immediate ancestors. There exists still in the death area about the London bombs a region of deserted small houses that furnish the most illuminating comment on the old state of affairs. These houses are entirely horrible, uniform, square, squat, hideously proportioned, uncomfortable, dingy and in some respects quite filthy; only people in complete despair of anything better could have lived in them, but to each is attached a ridiculous little rectangle of land called "the garden," containing usually a prop for drying clothes and a lathsome box of offal, the dustbin, full of eggshells, cinders and such like refuse. Now that one may go about this region in comparative security—for the London radiations have dwindled to inconsiderable proportions—it is possible to trace in nearly every one of these gardens some effort to make. Here it is a poor little plank summer house, here it is a "fountain" of bricks and plaster shells, here a "rockery," here a "workshop." And in the houses everywhere there are pitiful little decorations, chimney models, feeble drawings. These efforts are almost incredibly inept. Like the are only one shade less harrowing to a sympathetic observer than the scratchings one finds upon the walls of the old prisons, but there they are, witnessing to the poor buried instincts that struggled up toward the light. That god of joyous expression our poor fathers ignorantly sought our freedom has declared to us.

In the old days the common ambition of every simple soul was to possess a little property, a patch of land, a house uncontrolled by others, an "independence," as the English used to put it. And what made this desire for freedom and prosperity so strong was very evidently the dream of self-expression, of doing something with it, of playing with it, of making a personal delightfulness, a distinctiveness. Property was never more than a means to an end, nor avarice more than a perversion. Men owned in order to do freely. Now that every one has his own apartments and his own privacy secure, this disposition to own has found its release in a new direction. Men study and save and strive that they may leave behind them a series of panels in some public arcade, a row of carved figures along a terrace, a grove, a pavilion. Or they give themselves to the penetration of some still opaque riddle in phenomena as once men gave themselves to the accumulation of riches. The work that was once the whole substance of social existence—for most men spent all their lives in earning a living—is now no more than the burden upon one of those old climbers who carried knapsacks of provisions on their backs in order that they might ascend mountains. It matters little to the easy charities of our emancipated time that most people who have made their labor contribution produce neither new beauty nor new wisdom, but are simply busy about those pleasant activities and enjoyments that reassure them that they are alive. They help, it may be, by reception and revereration, and they hinder nothing.

Now all this phase of gigantic change in the contours and appearances of human life which is going on about us, a change as rapid and as wonderful as the swift ripening of adolescence to manhood after the barbaric boyish years, is correlated with moral and mental changes at least as unprecedented. It is not as if old things were going out of life and new things coming in, it is rather that the altered circumstances of men are making an appeal to elements in his nature that have hitherto been suppressed, and checking tendencies that have hitherto been overstimulated and overdeveloped. He has not so much grown and altered his essential being as turned new aspects to the light. Such turnings round into a new attitude the world has seen on a less extensive scale before. The Highlanders of the seventeenth century, for example, were cruel and bloodthirsty robbers; in the nineteenth their descendants were conspicuously trusty and honorable men. There was not a people in western Europe in the early twentieth century that seemed capable of hideous massacres and none that had not been guilty of them within the previous two centuries. The free, frank, kindly, gentle life of the prosperous classes in any European country before the years of the last war was in a different world of thought and feeling from that of the dingy, suspicious, secretive and uncharitable existence of the respectable poor, or the constant personal violence, the squalor and naive passions of the lowest stratum. Yet there were no real differences of blood and inherent quality between these worlds; their differences were all in circumstances, suggestion and habits of mind. And, turning to more individual instances, the constantly observed difference between one portion of a life and another consequent upon a religious conversion were

On The Spur of The Moment

Who? Who fight the battles of the king And march where sabres loudly ring? Of whom do war bands seldom sing? The people.

Who sacrifice their lives and all They may possess to heed the call That crowns may rise and may not fall? The people.

Who wade through blood with courage grim, To satisfy a monarch's whim And sing this monarch's battle hymn? The people.

Who have no choice to profit by? Who for content and peace may sigh, But must march on to kill—to die? The people.

Who through all time have been beset By death or vain regret, Recalling deeds they would forget? The people.

Who have fought battles, not their To keep the king upon his throne? Whose wrongs can no one ever condone? The people's.

A Remarkable Device. One of our anonymous friends has sent in the prospectus of a new machine that he has just invented. He calls it the most ingenious contrivance ever sprung upon an unsuspecting public. "By the simple twist of the wrist," according to the gentleman's claim, it can convert into any one of the following useful articles: Jack plane, monkey wrench, stove lifter, glass cutter, scroll saw, safety razor, bottle axe, bottle washer, button hook, cherry picker, weather vane, rain thrush, gas lighter, ice tongs, belt buckle, horse clipper, lunch basket, handcuffs, bit stalk, flour sifter, auto crank, ink stand, nail file, cork saw, vacuum cleaner, currycomb, broomjack, carpet stretcher, nutmeg grater, potato masher, screwdriver, meat chopper, rolling pin, tack hammer, electric bell, flat-iron, can opener, key ring, fountain pen, pipe cleaner, padlock, shoe last, music rack, flower pot, egg beater, cold chisel, catsup strainer, fish scaler, oil can, paper weight, rat trap, clear glass and silver polish, and the house wares of various rats, mice and other vermin, including bill collectors and book agents."

In spite of the things in Europe, the great American theatrical press agent continues the even tenor of his way. British specialist says laudation is a great contributory cause of lunacy, yet there are a lot of congressmen who are not crazy. It will not be long before the good old buckwheat cake will come along to aid in the battle against the H. C. of L.

The attention of the Society for the Relief of the Suffering, which should be called to Uncle Jim Mann of Illinois. Now that the English poets have written themselves out, the army can buy and try to solve the war. At latest reports the Panama canal was bringing in the money faster than Colonel Goethals could count it. Cannot the American government send soldiers over to Kian Chau and let him fight the Japs?

Our Part. They tell us that the old world war Does not touch us, but I opine, We're doing our share right along. Yes, you and I and yours and mine. They tell us it's an awful thing And that we don't know what war means. But we have got a faint idea. Look what we pay for flour and beans.

The others may go forth and fight While we stay at home and work all day. The others glory seek and fame, But we just pay and pay and pay. But still I guess, when all is said, We've got the best of it all right. Though we go bankrupt, buying food, We fight to live, they live to fight.

Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial, bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.
